

Bringing Connecticut together to achieve quality, affordable health care for everyone

In 2009, Connecticut passed Sustinet: a new health reform law that puts our state on the road to achieve quality, affordable health care for everyone. Now we need Washington to do its job.

After a year of public debate, the U.S. House of Representatives is set to vote on a health care bill later this week.

Now is the time to call your member of Congress and register your support for passage of the health care bill. Tell them to vote for the bill and send it to the Senate for action. Let's get the job done!

It's time to set the nation on the path to health care that:

- takes care of people when they are sick and doesn't exclude people with pre-existing conditions
- offers small businesses and families better, more affordable options for health care
- holds the insurance industry accountable and cracks down on rate increases
- reduces prescription costs for seniors by correcting the "donut hole" gap in Medicare drug benefits
- assures that health care spending provides better care instead of padding insurance profits
